Opens Fire With Heavy Artillery on This City.

ROAR OF NATURE'S BIG GUNS

One Assault Yesterday, Another Early This Morning.

TREES SWISHED AND BOWED

Several Small Panics-Fires Caused by Lightning-Capitol Was a Conspicuous Target.

The storm king opened fire with his heavy artillery on this city late yesterday afternoon and again between 2 and 3 o'clock this morning. The thunderous assaults were accompanied by heavy deluges of rain. Vivid bolts were hurled through the atmosphere and the roar of nature's big guns caused window panes to rattle and buildings to tremble, as though the city was in the throes of an earthquake. Lightning struck uprotted, telephone wires were tangled and disconnected and other damage caused. The first outbreak was noted soon after 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. It was preceded by a yellowish haze which gave trees and buildings a sort of ghastly hue. Then came the heavy storm clouds, tumbling and churning angrily. In a few moments the rain descended in great volumes causing the gutters to run with swollen streams. Gusts of wind accompanied the fall and the trees swished and bowed in the face of the several structures, a number of trees were

Washington's numerous colony of sparrows was almost depopulated of its young birds. The nests on boughs and in eaves were destroyed by the downpour and the howling blasts, and thousands of young birds were blown to the roadways and pavements, where they later became the prey of vagrant cats. The chattering of the mother birds as they witnessed the destruction of their young was a pathetic picture of the

Half an Inch of Rain.

In less than a half hour yesterday there was a fall of a half inch of rain. At times the fall was in the nature of cloudbursts, and the streets of the city received a needed flooding and cleansing.

So heavy and terrifying was the storm while at its height that several small panics were caused in office and other buildings where there was a congestion of humanity, and in one or two instances, it is reported, girls ran screaming from the structures into the streets, no doubt fearing a repetition of such a disaster as befell San Francisco. While the rain was coming down in sheets and torrents a brilliant flash of lightning, accompanied by a terrifying crash of thunder, appeared to come from the skies immediately over the White House. It seemed to descend earthward in a southeasterly direc-tion and struck the cornice of Chase's The-ater, tearing a part of it away. A blaze of fire followed the contact of the thunderbolt and an alarm was turned in. The fire en-gines dashed to the scene of the small conflagration and the firefighters climbed to the roof, while the blinding torrents of rain fell, and extinguished the flames before more a heavy explosion in the clouds and caused a panic in the neighborhood. Part of the cupola of th ebuilding was torn away and a lively blaze was started. The heav-rain acted as an auxiliary to the fire de partment and the blaze was soon extin-guished, after damage to the extent of $15 had resulted. The inmates of the house were badly frightened, it is said, by the crash and the bright bluish illumination which followed the thunderbolt.

Bolt Strikes Senate Stables.

Another bolt struck the Senate stables at Delaware avenue and C street northeast. The atmospheric electricity from the wouds ran along a wire, burning away the issulation and reached the woodwork of the stable, where a blaze was started. The rry of "fire" was raised and the firemen of the nearby company responded and ex-tinguished the flames after about $3 damage had resulted. The fence over which the electric wire extended was partly

A bolt descended on Ohio avenue and passed into the home of Elia Henson, col-ored, by way of the door, and gave her a shock that she says she will never forget. After entering the house and shocking the woman, the electric flash passed out into the atmosphere again by way of the chimney, leaving in its wake a bluish illumina-tion and a strong odor of sulphur. The woman, who was only partially stunned by the shock, rushed out upon the sidewalk screaming, and fell unconscious. She was hurried to the Emergency Hospital, and at first it was thought she had been secriously injured. But she soon recovered and re-

The big white Capitol building on the hill formed a conspicuous target for the heavy artillery of the skies, and one of the electric missiles struck the Senate side, shat-tering one of the skylights over the press gallery. This resulted in the gallery and an adjoining apartment being flooded with water. It is said that little damage re-sulted, however, as the water was quickly mopped up. Damage to Trees and Shoullery Reports received today state that great damage resulted to growing crops and to trees and shrubbery in the suburban places about the city, owing to the severity of the storm. Many trees were stripped of their foliage, while fences were blown down, windows shattered and other damage done. Many trees were injured in the city and crews of the parking commission were busy today clearing away the debris of the storm. Lieut. Daley of the ninth precinct reports a number of trees blown down in the northeast section. From Brightwood and the Soldlers Home reports were received today of the damage accomplished there by the fury of the disturbance. Shrubbery was destroyed and hundreds of sparrows were blown from their nests and perches and dashed against buildings and killed. The storm was particularly severe along the Canal road and the creeks north of the city were swollen and angry. Similar re-ports were received from Cabin John bridge, from Congress Heights and other nearby localities.

During the storm between 2 and 3 o'clock this morning, with its crashing thunder, which aroused many people from slumber, .38 of an inch of rain fell in less than an hour. Referring to the two storms, Prof. Edward B. Garriott of the weather bureau said today that while they were local, still stormy conditions had been gen-eral in this section of the country. He added that the storm clouds would clear away today and the outlook is for a nice

Credit Has the Same Purchasing Power Here as Ready Money.
